Taming the campus cost

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

The school board of the Washington Unified School District last week held a workshop to try to get a handle on how to pay for a planned new 2,400-student high school campus, estimated to cost over $148 million. The district is staring at a $32 million expected shortfall after factoring expected school bond money, state assistance and City of West Sacramento participation in "joint use" facilities."

One of the centers of scrutiny at Thursday's meeting was the planned theater/auditorium at the new campus – originally foreseen as an 800-seat, $8 million facility suitable for community events.

"I would really like to have a theater building," said board president Kevin Jones. "We all know the acoustics don't work for performances in a gym. "As far as something with a large 'fly loft' and that type of thing, it's going overboard for what we need."

But the board and its architect discussed how large, and how fancy, the theater should be.

Interim Superintendent David Tooker was asked if the high schools he helped open in Natomas had theaters as large as the one envisioned in West Sacramento. He responded that theaters seating slightly over 400 people seemed to work fine there.

Other topics at the workshop included the possibility of substituting aluminum wiring for copper to save money (raising potential long-term maintenance costs not received well by the board) and a talk about the possibility of installing a solar system at the new campus.

Tooker also said that he would be recommending a plan to exploit the district's unused real estate to raise money through leasing, development, sale or private partnerships.

"Regardless of what we do here, we're going to have capital asset needs for this project and for future schools," said Tooker – with the implication that sooner or later, the revenue would be needed.

The topic of the new high school will be back on the board's agenda this Thursday evening.

Locals in uniform

Army Private Robert J. White has graduated from basic combat training at Fort Jackson, Columbia, South Carolina. During his nine weeks of training, he studied the Army mission, history and tradition, and received instruction in, among other things, basic combat skills, rifle marksmanship, map reading and field tactics.

White is the son of Kimberly White of West Sacramento and a 2005 graduate of River City High School.

The cooling power of sunlight

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

A West Sacramento food distribution company is about a month away from bringing online a 1-megawatt rooftop solar array. Tony's Fine Foods, located on Reed Avenue west of I-80, is finishing the installation of hundreds of photovoltaic panels on its warehouse and office roofs.

"It's nice to do a project that is financially viable, that takes a load off the grid and also is good for the environment," said Scott Berger, the company's C.E.O. "The state of California gains because the more that companies like Tony's invest in technology like this, the less likely it is we'll have rolling blackouts and the less it is necessary to invest in new power plants."

The company is family owned by the Berger and Ingoglia families, after it was founded in 1934 by the late Tony Ingoglia. The company came to West Sacramento about 35 years ago, and now operates a 140,000 square foot warehouse specializing in frozen or refrigerated goods. Before landing on Reed Avenue, the company worked out of West Sacramento's port area.

Products handled include deli meats and cheeses from well-known brands like Oscar Meyer, Foster Farms, Sara Lee and Pilgrim's Pride, other food products and specialty deli items.

"We distribute perishable products to grocery stores and restaurants," Berger said. "We cover almost all of California as well as Nevada and Southern Oregon."

Because the company uses so much cooling power to preserve its merchandise, Tony's Fine Foods is a heavy power user.

"Just this facility has an annual utility bill of about $550,000 to $600,000 per year," said Berger.

So does the cost of installing the solar system "pencil out" in terms of savings on the electric bill?

"The fact that we're a big user helps, but you don't have to be a heavy user to benefit from a system like this. We use energy '24/7' here. This system will only cover about 40 percent of our use."

But, he added, the system will work best on those same summer days when state energy demand is the highest, electric rates are at their max, and the company's refrigeration systems need the most energy.

"The entire cost of this project is around seven million dollars," said Berger. "That's including rooftop improvements, changing over all our lights to high-efficiency bulbs, and other things. We expect the electricity savings to pay for the project over about six or seven years."

Berger added that utility rebates and tax breaks help pay about half of the project's up-front cost.

"There are state tax incentives, there's accelerated depreciation allowed on the system, and a federal tax benefit of about 30 percent of the cost of the new construction," said Berger. "Right now, there area quite a few credits available – that's why it will pay for itself this soon."

"The technology we're using is not rocket science, it's old technology," he added. "As more people invest in solar, it might help create more efficient technology."

One media source reports that the solar system at Tony's will replace a 904-kilowatt Federal Express photovoltaic system in Oakland as the largest business-owned system in the state. The one-megawatt system at the West Sacramento site will provide enough solar energy to serve 250 homes.

California's librarian will be guest of 'Friends'

Susan Hildreth, State Librarian of California, will be the guest speaker for the West Sacramento Friends of the Library's 45th Annual Dinner Meeting, to be held on February 28th.

Recognizing her distinguished 30-year career as a leader in public libraries, Governor Arnold Schwartznegger appointed Ms. Hildreth to the state post in July of 2004. Before her appointment, Hildreth had been serving as the City Librarian of San Francisco with its $58 million budget. In 1980-84 she worked for the Yolo County Library in Davis and Woodland.

The dinner will be held at the West Sacramento VFW Hall, 905 Drever Street. A 6 p.m. social hour will be followed by a catered dinner at 6:30 p.m. Admission is $10.

The public as well as members of the Friends are welcome. Reservation forms are available at the Arthur F. Turner Library, 1212 Merkley Avenue. Reservations and checks may be mailed to the West Sacramento Friends of the Library, PO Box 692, West Sacramento, CA 95691 by February 22. For more information, call 371-4877.

Busting a suspected 'Smurf':

Buying too much cold medicine

Officers of the Yolo County Narcotics Team-(YONET) said they arrested an Orland man for stocking up on cold medicine at stores throughout the region, in order to use the drugs to make methamphetamine.

Stores restrict the purchase of medicines containing pseudoephedrine to two boxes.

Buyers known in the drug world as "smurfs" go store-to-store buying the cold medicines, said YONET.

On Feb. 1, officers were notified that a suspect was at the Food 4 Less in Woodland buying pseudoephedrine pills. Agents followed suspect Zavala Gonzalez from Food 4 Less to Woodland's WalMart store, and then to the counties of Colusa, Glenn and Sutter, where Gonzalez "would stop at numerous retail stores and purchae two boxes of pseudoephedrine from each store."

A YONET spokesperson said Gonzalez took action to try to avoid being followed.

A search warrant was later served on the man's home, turning up over a thousand pseudoephedrine pills, along with a 9 millimeter handgun with ammunition and a receipt for a storage locker in Olivehurst.

Gonzalez was arrested and the storage unit – rented with another suspect – was searched. The search revealed a boxed up "meth lab," including a stained 22 liter vessel with chemical liquid traces, a heating mantle, a stained drums, and about 15 pounds of iodine crystals, red phosphorus, several bottles of sulphuric acid and other items.

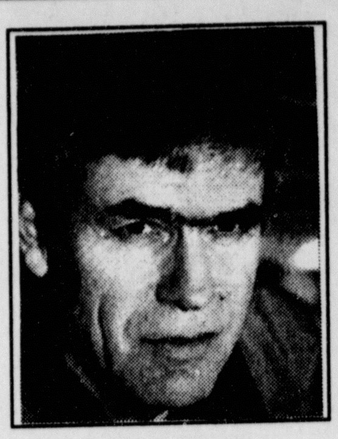

Agents also recovered a pound of meth, said YONET.

The search for the suspect's partner continues.

Brainstorming with the greatest lover of all time

My Back Pages

By Daryl Fisher

Note: With Valentine's Day just around the corner, I am reminded of the following column, which I wrote a half-dozen or so years ago about an imaginary conversation I had with Don Juan, the greatest of all lovers:

I came across an old Bob Woodward book the other day entitled The Choice and the most interesting thing in it was this little section about Hillary Rodham Clinton back when she was the First Lady of the land and living in the White House in Washington, D.C. According to Woodward, Mrs. Clinton (now Senator Clinton) had her own spiritual adviser and from time to time they would engage in morale-building brainstorming sessions with famous figures of the past, including former First Lady Eleanor Roosevelt and Indian leader Mohandas Gandhi.

Ms. Houston, a New Age human-potential psychologist, told some apparently very interested reporters that what she and Mrs. Clinton were doing was nothing more than "An intellectual exercise in role-playing which is done everyday in many business corporations. You imagine somebody that you'd like to talk to and it helps focus your ideas."

As for Mrs. Clinton, she said, "The bottom line is that I have no spiritual advisers or any other alternatives to my deeply held Methodist faith and the traditions upon which I have relied since childhood."

Anyway, I guess the whole thing caused quite a fuss in the papers back then (although I don't really recall it). I mean, what's the big deal? Doesn't everyone have occasional chats with people who have been a long-time dead? I know I certainly do. In fact, just the other evening I found myself shooting the breeze with Don Juan, the legendary Spanish lover. And if I remember correctly, our conversation went a little something like this:

"Don," I asked the famous seducer, "can you keep a secret?"

"Don't worry," he said, waving a delicate hand in the air and flashing the same endearing little-boy smile which probably once helped him deflower hundreds of women, "you don't have to worry about me saying a thing. I'm dead, remember?"

"Okay, then, Don," I said, "I will come right to the point. I've been seriously thinking lately about maybe making more of an effort to become a great lover, you know, just like you."

"Is that right?" he asked, obviously a little surprised.

"And I would like to pick your brain on the subject for a few minutes, if that's alright? You know, go over some of the pros and cons with you, and maybe even learn some of the specific techniques which set you apart from everyone else back in your day."

"I see," he said, taking a moment to look me up and down.

"What's the matter, Don?"

"Well," he said as tactfully as he could, "aren't you a little too old to be starting such an arduous undertaking?"

"But I'm only 52."

"When I was alive back in the 1600s," he explained with the most charming of Spanish accents, "men only had a life-span of about 45 years. And the really great lovers -- of which there were only a very few -- were usually all washed up by their mid-30s. I'm sorry, Daryl, but a 52-year-old great lover? I just don't think it's going to happen."

"But it's really different nowadays," I assured him. "Women have dramatically lowered their standards over the years. Age isn't so important anymore. If you haven't lost all your hair, still have your own teeth, and if you're not too short or too fat, they'll give most anyone a chance."

"How very, very sad," he said, a single tear rolling down his freshly powdered cheek.

"Anyway," I said, "there must be a few tips you can pass along to me."

"Well," he said, "good hygiene is certainly important, and the first thing I would recommend is bathing at least once a month."

"Okay," I said, gagging. "Anything else?"

"Yes, you definitely need to spend some time working on that body of yours."

"Any particular part of my body?" I asked.

"Your calves," he said without hesitation. "Women are extremely attracted to a man's calves, but I'm afraid even the most expensive silk stockings will do little to help enhance those skinny legs of yours."

"I see," I said. "But what about in the area of technique? Do you have any specifics you could share with me about that?"

"First, Daryl, you must answer me a few questions."

"Sure."

"Are you wealthy?"

"No."

"Do you come from a noble family?"

"No."

"Are there any large estates which you will someday inherit?"

"No."

"Then I'm afraid there's really no need for this conversation to go much further, Daryl, because a man your age would definitely need such things for a women to even consider him as a lover."

"But there must be more to being a great lover than just worldly possessions."

"Well," said Don, "of course it's also important to have a long sword."

"A long sword?"

"Absolutely! If a man in not willing to whip out his sword and die in a swashbuckling duel for the woman he loves, he can never hope to be considered a great lover."

"So, you're saying that a man needs to be willing to die at a moment's notice for the woman he loves?"

"Oh, without question!"

"Well, Don," I said, suddenly realizing that great lover status was probably way out of my reach, "I sure do appreciate you having taken the time to brainstorm with me. It's been very helpful."

"My pleasure," he said. "And oh yes, Daryl, there is one more thing I should mention."

"What's that, Don?"

"Always remember that women, unlike men, love with their ears and their heart, not just with their eyes. And sometimes they will even love a man simply out of pity."

"Really?" I said. "And what's the importance of knowing that?"

"Well," he said as kindly as he could, "among other things, it means that your situation is not entirely hopeless."

Eddie and Pam ask: 'We want to buy fixers, what do we do?'

Buying fixers are a good way to build wealth in Real Estate, however they can also be a huge money pit...

First and foremost I always ask my clients what is their interruption of a fixer, and what kind of experience do they have working on such things. What you have to remember is that everybody's view of a fixer is different, and it is vital that you understand your personal limitations when taking on such a project. That means if you are a weekend worrier and feel you are pretty good with your hands, than a major rehab type fixer would not be your best first choice.

Usually things that the industry classifies as fixer are repairs such as carpet, paint, light kitchen work, some floor work, maybe even a roof or update the heating and air system. A major fixer is classified as replacing floors, removing or changing walls, complete overhaul of kitchen and bath(s), complete new roof (replace sheathing or wood slats), exterior stucco or T1-11, drywall work. With each classification of fixer comes with it specific loan criteria. So be prepared to for a little bit higher interest rates, and maybe even a short term limited construction loan. It is equally important to understand that just because you are buying a fixer, that you don't overbuild for the neighborhood. You always want to make sure that the money you put into the project can be easily replenished when sold.

Another factor that to many is obvious yet seemingly overlooked is the holding period during construction. The lender still wants their payments, so the caleulation of this can drastically cut into your profits. In some cases having a licensed contractor take on the job who can devote all their time to the project may decrease your profits, but may shorten the time for completion. I will always remember one of my mentors telling me that 50% of something is always better the a 100% of nothing, (that mentor was my father).

Should you have any questions regarding fixers, feel free to call me or any of my associates for the answers.

SPORTS

SPORTS INSIDER

By Richard Novoa

The NFL season finally comes to a close just in time to welcome the XX Winter Olympics in Turin, Italy. NBC will have 230 hours of coverage of the Olympics starting on Friday, February 10 and ending on February 26th. The NBC film crew will be busy moving around the city to bring viewers a mixture of Figure skating, Men's and Women's Hockey, Skiing, Speed skating, and Snowboarding and Extreme sports. Do you think the Bus system in will run affectively in Turin?

Speaking of the Bus, it finally arrived for the Pittsburgh Steelers and Iron City fans. The city has been very hungry for their NFL record tying fifth Super Bowl title. Jerome Bettis and company didn't disappoint the their fans with their ugly and boring 21-10 win over the self destructing Seahawks to claim the Vince Lombardi trophy. My column not only predicted the winning team but also had a premonition that Super Bowl XL would have the nationwide appeal to set viewing records.

The game itself wasn't very exciting but it did set viewing records worldwide and was the most viewed Super Bowl since 2000. According to published ratings Super Bowl XL was viewed by 141.4 million American fans which equates to about 45.9 household rating making this event the second most viewed T.V. program, second only to the final episode of Mash.

Both teams took turns trying to give the game away with penalties, dropped passes and referee interference. Did I mention the referees again? Yes, after the striped fellows blew some terrible calls in a few of the previous playoffs games, they struck again! The NFL will fine Coach Holmgren for his comments regarding the referee's performance or should I say their lack of performance. Poor refs, they're always getting a bad rap.

Speaking of a bad rap, Joe Montana is feeling the heat from football fans and the media personalities for refusing to stick around Detroit for the opening ceremony. Rumor in NFL circles is that Montana wanted $100K to participate in the event before the kick off and when the NFL refused his request he returned home for his sons basketball game. Say it isn't so Joe!

Super Bowl XL

On the bright side Hines Ward won the Super Bowl XL MVP award and was rewarded with a visit Disneyworld with his buddy and mentor Jerome Bettis. The Steelers finally rewarded coach Cowher with his Super Bowl ring after 14 years and became the first wild card team to win three road games against the top AFC seeds and then whip the NFC's No. 1 seed.

Another interesting note is Ben Roethlisberger, 23, became the youngest quarterback to win a Super Bowl. Big Ben had a terrible game but the bottom line is the Steelers won even though opposing quarterback, Matt Hasselbeck passed for more yardage with 273 yards and one touchdown compared to a shaky 123 yards from Ben that needed an option touchdown pass by Randle El to seal the victory.

For the Seahawks its wait until next year but their 2006 season may hinge on the signing of free agent MVP Shaun Alexander, who is commanding a $20 million signing bonus. Alexander earns $6.32 million and could become a free agent on March 3rd.

The Steelers on the other will have to fight the urge from five of their starting players to take their Super Bowl fame to other teams or to negotiate new contracts. Beside the five free agents the Steelers will be around $6 million over the salary cap and will probably lose their offensive coordinator, Ken Whisenhunt, to the Oakland Raiders.

The Super Bowl winners always seem to deal with money issues following their victory while the losing teams chemistry falls apart. Only time will tell if Seattle can deal with their loss or will they fall into the same pattern of the 2005 Eagles.

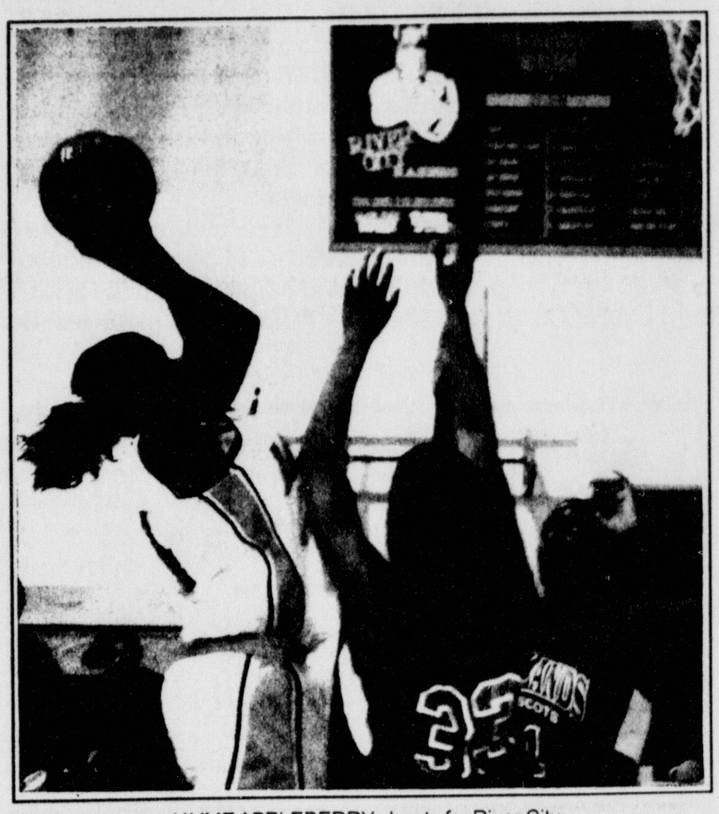

The NFL season will come to and end this Sunday in Honolulu with the Pro Bowl and then after a four-month vacation the teams will report to camp to prepare for the road to Super Bowl Forty-one in Miami, Florida.

Aztec Picks

The Dawg was hot this season with his playoff football picks or should I say he was a Hot Dog! Aztec was 10-1 in the playoffs with his only loss coming in Indianapolis. The Dawg closed out the NFL and College football season with a very impressive 55 wins, 32 losses and 2 ties. Aztec of course picked the Steelers not only to win the Super Bowl XL but to also cover the point spread. Now, as his canine agent, I now have to deal with his public appearance request for David Letterman show and the National Dog show in New York. The price of fame and fortune for Aztec will be tough but it's a Dog's World!

SPORTS from p. 3 —

Kings Korner
Just when Kings (20-27) were feeling good about themselves the injury bug strikes again. Bonzi Wells, and Abdur-Rahm returned to the line up last week only to make room on the bench for center Brad Miller, who fractured his right thumb. Bonzi re-injured his groin on Friday and Miller will be day-to-day. It was kind of funny to watch the referee give Abdur-Rahm a technical foul on Sunday against the Jazz for mumbling out loud. Shareef is still recovering from his broken jaw and has his jaw wired shut!

It's not too late for the Kings to make a playoff run according to the Kings newest member Ron Artest. Artest is leading by example after returning to the starting line up on Sunday after being injured in Utah by Greg Ostertag's aggressive foul. Do you remember Peja playing hurt?

Also, the Kings fans booed Ostertag, the beloved ex-King, on Sunday especially after he tried to trip Mike Bibby on a drive to the basket. Also, Mike Bibby continues his make his play to be added the Western Conference All-Star team next week.

Enjoy your day – see ya next week!

OPINION

News-Ledger Editorial

Bits & pieces

Maybe you saw him: the panhandler with the cardboard sign and the crutch, hunkered in gloomy weather at the Harbor Boulevard offramp from US 50 last week.

Maybe you also saw him as he was setting up camp for a day's work at this job site – walking casually to his spot next to the signal light pole, stooping low here and there to move a few objects into comfortable position, and finally taking a seat.

He did all that while carrying that crutch under his arm like the prop that it was, unneeded for anything other than helping to separate you from your money.

The school district is still searching in good faith to find ways to trim costs at the proposed new high school and to raise revenues. There are a couple of areas in which it seems promising to find at least some money.

How much would you or your company pay for naming rights to the campus's new theater, pool, football field or some other semi-public facility? This question ought to be discussed and put to the public (even marketed) soon.

And it remains clear that at some point the district is going to want to use some of the unspent bond proceeds from the 1999 high school renovation ballot measure to help pay for the new campus. It also remains the News-Ledger's opinion that this shouldn't be done without an advisory measure on the ballot to ask for the public's permission – and it is hard to understand why a plan for this advisory measure isn't already in the works.

The board is looking again to tackle the idea of what to call the new campus. Look, again, for a vocal segment of the community advocating that the new campus carry the same name as the "old" campus: River City High School. Unless and until someone comes up with a really good argument against this idea, it should carry the day.

There is a "pedestrian and bicyclist user survey" available for you to fill out at city hall. You can give the city your "two bits" regarding what is needed to better serve pedestrians and bicyclists in town.

Contact the traffic/transportation department for more information, or visit the city website (www.cityofwestsacramento.org).

One area that poses a special danger to pedestrians right now is the Jefferson Boulevard overpass just north of Safeway. A lot of walkers travel alongside both sides of the road – not always with adequate protection from cars. For a long time, this stretch of road has looked like a tragedy about to happen.

Letters to the Editor

Bad reporting

In my job, I work closely with newspaper reporters, television and radio news staff in many states. I know that sometimes they fail to get the story right because the topic is one with which they are unfamiliar or a fast approaching deadline keeps them from filling in some gaps. Most of the time the errors are minor. Most of the time they are interested in the facts. Frequently, they seek out an expert's explanation of what a report, study, or audit means.

On other occasions, I have worked with reporters whose approach to the story was a foregone conclusion and all they look for are people who support their preconceived agenda. Your coverage of the Seffens and Geivett story falls within the latter category. It is consistently one-sided, sloppy, and just plain wrong. Not only is your agenda clear from the editorial pages and alleged news stories, it is also apparent from the letters you keep selecting for publication -- often from the same author.

Your paper ill serves the needs of WUSD students and the larger community by acting as a front for the few loud voices of those who have come to Seffens and Geivett's defense. These are the same people that repeatedly cite the American Heritage Dictionary as if it were the Bible to their cause.

Here are some of the facts from the Perry-Smith audit -- an audit that was ordered by the assistant superintendent of business services in April 2005. In the words of the Perry-Smith auditors Mr. Seffens acted "in direct violation of the Education Code and established district policy." He also "failed to obtain the approval of student body fund expenditures prior to incurring the expense" as required by the Ed. Code. During the 2004-2005 school year, the auditors report that there were "77 instances" of Mr. Seffens violating that provision of the law. In other words he spent money he was not authorized by law to spend -- student's money -- over and over again. Furthermore, the Perry-Smith audit confirms that Mr. Seffens "was aware of the proper procedure." He knew what the law required. He just chose to ignore. Mr. Seffens considered himself above the law. The Perry-Smith audit also confirms that under Mr. Seffens' watch, more than $11,000 of student money -- not athletic funds but ASB funds -- disappeared with no accounting for its use or misuse. In his rambling statement to the school board on January 12th, Mr. Seffens suggested that some of the money can be accounted for because of some baseball caps and spirit towels he says are still on hand. There is only one problem with that excuse. When asked about this by the auditors, he told them "none of the merchandise remains."

I do not know what happened at the hearing at which Seffens claims the charges were unfounded and he was exonerated. I am sure your readers have heard the phrase, "He was let off on a technicality." I suspect that is exactly what happened with Mr. Seffens. If he has nothing to hide, then I call upon him to release the transcript and all the other records related to his case. Seffens is not the innocent he pretends.

Thank you

The River City High School and Club West Cheerleaders hosted a spaghetti feed and raffle on January 28th at the West Sacramento VFW Hall #8762. This fundraiser assisted both groups in raising funds to attend a national cheerleading competition later this month for Club West and in March for River City.

We would like to thank all of those who attended that evening and those who worked hard to make the fundraiser a success. We would also like to acknowledge and thank the following businesses for their generous donations:

VFW Hall #8762, Zapata's Black Belt Academy, Nick's Diner, Challenge Graphics, Luxury Nails, Emma's Taco House, Century 14, The UPS Store, Capitol Bowl, Johnnie's Sidewalk Pizza, Southport Auto Center, Club Pheasant, Morton's Steakhouse and Carol's Restaurant. Your help was very much appreciated!

Health care for all

Not only is the latest overall Medicare program too confusing, but it has become too costly for too many, resulting in excess profits for drug companies and health care providers. In spite of those hikes taking an even bigger cut of working and retired folks' incomes, one major factor is missing: Health care for all. Our country in the only major one lacking it? Why? Greed.

All branches of government under the control of the Republican Party has led to this as too many of them are too close to CEO's of big business, whose outsourcing and off-shoring has led to fewer living wage jobs and those "foreign" businesses avoiding taxes.

To our Republican friends who oppose health care for all "because it would be socialistic," take note: germs respect no political boundaries and the GOP seems to forget that "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

As long as one-third of our population lacks health care coverage, costs will continue to increase disproportionately. And how do the CEO's of bankrupt corporations afford health care? Something's fishy.

LETTERS from p. 7

undergoing the largest peace time invasion in our history. The recent actions of Costa Mesa, in conjunction with Orange County, together ordering government employees to enforce federal immigration laws are a tiny step in the right direction.

Besides building the wall, I suggest we use eminent domain on a ten mile wide swath of our borders to create a continuous live fire training range for light and heavy infantry and armored tactical weapons; plus, artillery, naval and air bombardment training as well, with multiple exercises on 24/7 unannounced schedules. Further, captured illegal's should be put aboard retrofitted ships from the mothball fleet and sent to such diverse ports as Tierra del Fuego, Tasmania, and the Cape of Good Hope.

I ask those of you who are screaming at your paper regarding my perceived insensitivity. Why are you for slavery? Because illegal aliens, working for substandard wages, being held against their will, doing the unspeakable things that their slave masters (pimps, sweat shop overseers, et cetera) tell them to do for fear of death, or their loves ones, are slaves. Pure and simple.

WUSD troubles

Well, just when you think things can't get any worse (in WUSD), they hold another workshop and things are brought out and said that just blow ones mind! Last week a workshop was held to discuss "Design, Development, Cost Estimate, and Schedule for New High School".

I feel that the community has a right to know just how they intend on spending our tax dollars. I just can't believe the first thing discussed and on the schedule to be built would be the PE/City Recreation area. First off, the City has not committed the $15 million (as verified by 2 Council Members after a recent meeting) and they haven't agreed to the proposed design.

Again I say, do we really want to take the chance of someone getting on our campus that doesn't belong by having the City building attached to the high school PE facility? Why would we need a tennis "lounge" on a high school campus, isn't that what locker rooms are for? One of the bigger shocks of the evening was when it was brought out that the concession stand and restrooms attached to the football stadium would cost over one million dollars. As I stated that night, we're not Raley Field! When we are over $32 million over budget, why would we build such an extravagant snack bar? Many of us pointed out that night, we need to scale back the "fluff" and make more frugal decisions that won't bankrupt this District.

There is no reason we can't build a decent snack bar that has running water, storage, and electricity that doesn't blow fuses while you're trying to work in it as well as something better than "porta potties" that can be used during different athletic events. It was very disappointing that after one year of hearing Board members as well as community members request a cost analysis to bring down the cost of the $9 million theater, "they didn't have any numbers". Why?

What is the real reason no one has really worked at bringing down the cost of the design? Again, we need a 400-500 seat auditorium that enhances our drama and music departments. We need a nice stage and lighting but I truly don't think we need nearly one million dollars in lighting. Another disturbing thing brought up by the teachers in attendance that night (which has been brought up to this Board over the last 8 months) is that the teachers and high school staff have been left out of the design process. Why? How can you design affective classrooms, without input from the people who work in them? How do you design a science lab without the science teachers input? I find it absolutely appalling that they would even consider delaying building one of the buildings that houses classrooms. What does that say about where their priorities are?

I am continually amazed at the disfunction in this District. We the community and parents have got to step up and voice our concerns before it's too late. One community member suggested that we move forward and build the new high school according to the current design without "nickel and diming" it anymore. He also stated that if we have to borrow to build it than that's what we should do.

I say, we "borrowed" when we went to the voters and sold a bond measure under the impression that it would be "spent on only the most essential project components listed" (taken from exhibit B on Measure Q). I certainly never voted, or helped to get others to vote for it, thinking that it would be used so frivolously. What does it teach our children if we "just build it"?What are we teaching them about putting yourself in debt and what debt are we passing on to them by borrowing or even worse, bankrupting this District? I don't understand how scaling back the design is not giving our kids the best let alone, much better than what they currently have!

By cutting $100 thousand here, one million there, how do you consider it nickel and diming? Those are big numbers! The other alternative the Board is considering, which I mentioned in last week's letter, is to only build for 1080 students and leave 1200 plus at RCHS. Again, that is not what we voted for. How would it be decided who went to which school? Do we want to divide the community again? If you're new to our community, talk to someone who has lived here, it wasn't pretty!

The Board will be voting to "Approve Scope of Work for New High School Construction Documents", this Thursday, at the Civic Center. Please join us! Our kids are counting on us!

Potato Soup's On

I love any kind of soup, but I especially love potato soup. It's the most comforting of soups that I can think of. Try this healthy version and see if you don't agree.

COUNTRY-STYLE HAM & POTATO CHOWDER

1 (10 3/4-ounce) can reduced-fat cream of celery soup
1 cup fat-free milk
1 teaspoon dried onion flakes
1 teaspoon dried parsley flakes
1 1/2 cups diced extra-lean ham
1 1/2 cups diced cooked potatoes
1 cup frozen whole-kernel corn, thawed
1 cup frozen cut broccoli, thawed

In a large saucepan, combine celery soup, milk, onion flakes and parsley flakes. Add ham, potatoes and corn. Mix well to combine. Stir in broccoli. Bring mixture to a boil, stirring often. Lower heat, cover and simmer for 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Makes 4 (1 1/4 cup each) servings.

• Each serving equals: 240 calories, 4g fat, 19g protein, 32g carb., 730mg sodium, 4g fiber; Diabetic Exchanges: 1 1/2 Starch, 1 1/2 Meat, 1 Vegetable.

THE YOLO INDEPENDENT

LARGE TRACT NEAR DAVIS SOLD FOR EXPLOITATION

Woodland, Sept. 20.—The La Rue brothers of Davis today sold to Charles, Frank, Ella and Mary Campbell, brothers and sisters, 450 acres near Davis, this county.

The property is a part of the estate of the late H. M. LaRue, one of the first settlers of the county. Some 257 acres adjoins the University Farm. A part is planted to barley, and 250 acres are in wine grapes, which the new owners propose to grub up and substitute grain crops.

Did anybody hear anything about a ship canal to the sea from Sacramento lately?

For a while there was so much noise about this canal, that it ought to be built by this time.

J. Nurse, George Artz, James Edgar and Johnnie Cronan were named by the City Commissioners as special policemen last Tuesday, but only along the line of their regular duties.

The Commissioners are about to give these popular city employes stars made from the blade of a shovel.

Yolo Independent is the home paper for 4,000 people.

ROAD BUILDING PROPOSAL THAT SHOULD HAVE THE SUPPORT OF ALL THE PEOPLE

At a conference held in Sacramento last Tuesday and called by the California Highway Commission, an understanding was reached whereby it is proposed to build several lateral roads to connect with the main highways of the State.

The Highway Commission's proposal amounted to the expenditure of $3,000,000 out of State funds, a like amount to be given by the counties through which those lateral roads would pass for the completion of the project.

With the completion of the expenditure of the $15,000,000 bond issue, it is presumed that the main State highways will be finished and the lateral roads referred to are those in excess of the original plan mapped out several years ago.

California has been gaining a reputation through its highways. Although young in years, California is noted for the progress it has made, especially in this line during several years past and let it be said here that this was prompted mostly through the necessity of a road across the Yolo Basin.

There is nothing that enhances the joy of living more than the proximity of a good road.

There is nothing that will promote the idea "back to the land" more than the presence of good roads.

During several years past, it has become known that the congestion in large cities has been more or less relieved through the building of good roads throughout the country. More good roads will continue to relieve the city's congestion and especially now that the automobile has become the popular means of transportation.

No county in the State should refuse to put up its share for the extension of the laterals mentioned by the State Highway Commission.

Even though they might be forced to skimp in some other matters, there should be no skimping in road building, for it spells prosperity for the town and it means less congestion in the centers of population.

Then again, the prosperity of the farmer this year is proverbial. It is the farmer today who owns the money of the country and it is the farmer who is getting more of it.

Then again, there is peace and contentment in the home of the farmer who is prosperous and although at times his work is hard and his hours long, there is the prospect in the future of a life of ease and plenty when old age approaches.

VALLEY RICE PRODUCTION WORTH $10,000,000

Within a few days the Pacific Rice Growers' Association will meet to fix a minimum price for this year's crop in California. This announcement was made by J. H. Stephens, President of the association.

Of a total of 81,310 acres producing rice in California this year, the association has already signed up 62 per cent of the growers and expects to reach between 75 and 80 per cent.

In view of this organized movement to protect the producer, who will be assured of a fair price for his cereal, President Stephens has been advised by the Hoover Commission that no attempt will be made by the Federal Government to take over the California crop, but will leave it in the hands of the Growers' Association, so long as the speculator is eliminated, and a fair basis is reached for selling.

Just what the price will be has not been determined, although some basis to work upon has been established by the Texas and Louisiaana growers, whose harvest is more advanced than California.

The new rice opened strong at $7 per barrel (162 pounds), which is regarded as indicating that the price will not go under that figure. A bag of rice weighs 100 pounds, and it is figured at about 4 cents per pound net.

President Stephens estimates the rice crop in this State will range between 2,500,000 and 3,000,000 bags, although the Federal authorities place it as high as 4,000,000 bags. The Sacramento Valley crop alone is estimated to be worth between $10,000,000 and $11,000,000.
